The announcement published in the Rodong Sinmun newspaper on Friday said the five US citizens will "get to know the reality of the socialist system" on their journey to the North's capital, Pyongyang. The US Embassy did not immediately respond to a request for comment. US President Donald Trump's administration has expressed optimism about prospects for negotiations with North Korea in recent months, but the effort is complicated by Pyongyang's recent testing of a new intermediate-range missile and its vows to continue developing its nuclear arsenal. 'Disappointing' The second official vice director of the East Asian Institute of North Korea's Academy of Sciences, Kim Chol, told the KCNA news agency on Friday that while the US-led push for talks with Pyongyang was "very disappointing," efforts had nevertheless yielded some "tangible" results. Kim said Washington's latest offer of talks would "bring a big impact" on North Korea, given that "the US is openly saying there will be no war on the Korean peninsula." "If the US seriously wants peace on the Korean peninsula, it must back up its words with actual concrete steps," Kim said. South Korea's Unification Ministry, which handles inter-Korean relations, said on Friday that it was aware of reports about the US group's visit, and was "coordinating with the United States about the details." A separate announcement by the North Korean news agency said the ministry had approved the visit, which is scheduled to begin April 12 and run for 10 days. Liu Guijin, a professor at China's Institute of International Relations, told Reuters this week that a trip by the five Americans could encourage

App Bar Icons For Windows Phone 7

App Bar Icons for Windows Phone 7 is a lightweight package that includes a collection of beautiful icons built specifically for graphic developments. It bundles a wide range of bar icons for Windows Phone 7 Series, each coming in PNG file format. The package can be downloaded on any Windows operating system, and you copy it on the desired location on your computer. By default, the icons are stored within an archived file (ZIP file format), so you need dedicated programs to open the compressed data. Since there is no setup included, you can simply drop the files on a user-defined location on the hard drive, or copy them on a USB flash disk or other devices and take them with you whenever you want to change your applications' icons with custom ones. The images have a high-quality, 48x48 pixels and 4KB size, and you can apply these icons to files, folders, or various programs. What's more, it features a built-in icon editor which gives users the possibility to create a new icon from scratch by
